1 Corinthians 15:45-49

Adam and Adam

Adam and Jesus would seem to have nothing in common. Adam was created by God. Jesus was the eternal, uncreated Word of God. Adam was given paradise to live in, but he disobeyed God. Jesus was given a sinful world to live in, but he obeyed the Father. Adam is remembered as the firstborn of sinful humanity. Jesus is remembered as the firstborn from the dead. They seem to have nothing in common.

But Paul sees parallels in a short passage from his first letter to the Corinthians. He even refers to Jesus as “the last Adam” and “the second man.” Paul writes, “The first man, Adam, became a living being, the last Adam a life-giving spirit. ... The first man was from the earth, earthly; the second man, from heaven.”

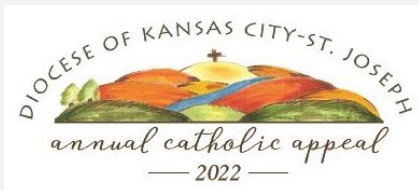

Paul says that we Christians have inherited a little of each. Born human, we bear the image of the earthly Adam, the first one. But as Christians, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly Adam, the last one.

We are not simple creatures. We are inheriting a bit of divinity. It matters how we treat one another. We should not treat human beings as if they were disposable. There is something heavenly about us—even if on some days we behave rather earthly.

Adam and Jesus have something in common. They give us hope for eternal life, and they influence our daily lives.

Loving & Serving the Homeless of Kansas City

“His Name Is Bryan”

I recently spoke about homelessness to a group of students at a nearby university. I showed them this picture which I found on the Internet. I asked them to make up a story about how this man ended up homeless, begging for help on the street.

Many wrote what you might expect, "He wasted his money on drugs." "He lost his job." "He was just evicted and has no where to go."

One student's story stood out for its length and insight. Here is what this student wrote:

"His name is Bryan. Bryan was diagnosed with bipolar disorder when he was 17. He grew up in a single-parent household. His family barely gets by. His parents could never afford his medication. After graduation he moved out and acquired a job, but he was soon fired due to behavioral issues. Bryan now lives on the street, begging for money to survive."

Of the about 50 students who wrote stories, only a few, gave a name to the person in the picture. By giving the person a name, he is no longer a category: "homeless," "beggar," "panhandler," rather, he becomes an individual with parents and a back story. The tone of the story is more sympathetic and lacking judgement.

In the Gospel at Mass this weekend, Jesus says, "Stop judging and you will not be judged. Be merciful just as your Father is merciful."
